A WEEKLY REVIEW

NEW-YORK DRY GOODS MARKET, For the week ending Wednesday evening, Sept. 29, 1858.

There are no new features in the trade, although during the past few days the activity among the dis-tributing houses has been greater than was anticipated. We hear of re-orders from almost every section of the country except the yellow fever districts, where dull-ness regns. The heavy trade of the season, however, is past, leaving smaller stocks of goods on hand than for many years at this period. The consumption of goods has been curtailed in some departments, yet those of prime necessity have been required, and are still wanted. Manufactured goods, with few excep-tions, have been scarce, but with a cessation of trade which has characterized former seasons an accumulastatement does not give an accurate estimate of the were largely in excess of the cosumption. Many mills they have never removed the necessities of the system.

The large distributing-houses, and the class who "make up" goods for the trade—the clothing and furnishing houses—lay in their stocks from necessity before the country demands their goods. It is import-ant to them that, from the sale of their stocks, they should be able to provide for their early purchases.

They extend facilities to the country distributor, and hence require a longer credit for themselves. The remedy is in the system which has been proposed in our columns. The manufacturer should make his contracts direct for future delivery, and purchase the goods only as fast as required; thus save interest and render long coulds unnecessary. This, together with uniform determination on the part of the jobbers to shorten the credit to their customers, would result in an entire abandonment of the long credit system.

In the present state of the market, with a probable advance in Cotton for the next sixty days, and a possible decline after that time, the manufacturer should change his style or reduce the product of his looms, if

The overland mail did not connect with the steamers recently arrived, and we have no further intelligence from China. In the mean time Drills drag heavily, and we learn of no important movement. The constantly advancing cotton market has no effect upon the production, as the large corporations are confident that the new opening of trade will yet take all the goods which can be produced. 27-inch Drills are dull, although the production is limited. Light 30-inch Drills, with soft filling, weighing four yards to the pound, are wanted for coloring purposes.

Brown Sheetings and Shirtings, The stock of these goods, although diminished in the manufacturers' hands, is not reduced in the general market. The recent large deliveries to the distributing houses are not yet required by the country, and are offered in the market at a less price than the present views of the manufacturers. Light Brown Sheetings are still wanted, if made perfectly, and adapted to coloring purposes.

Bleached Sheetings and Shirtings.

These goods have been scarce. We have noticed some accumulation in 5-4 goods. There are number of looms producing the various styles, that we apprehend that many stocks will be carried over, and we shall witness the results of home competition, which are to be deprecated. At present the demand is good for most styles. Many of these goods are wanted for silicias, and it would be well for the manufacturer to devote a portion of his product to that department, even at a slight concession in price, rather than to bleach all his goods.

The demand for choice styles of heavy goods has been for the past few days quite active, and the manufacturers of Fancy Cassimeres are satisfied with the prices they have obtained. The trade are taking only a few choice styles, yet it is the opinion of the jobbing trade that a second demand will shortly appear, and that all the best makes will be taken for consumption. New samples of Spring Cassimeres, that promise further liberal orders from the distributing houses, have appeared during the past week. Low goods are selling at a reduction from the early season's prices, yet on the whole we can report a satisfactory result to the manufacturer, except for

It is too late in the day to suppose that this market is the chief receptacle of all the old stocks and unsalable The Commissioners here adjourned till to-day at 12 goods of the foreign market, and we presume the experience of the past will have its effect in future im-

St. Louis AND Inos .- The St. Louis Republican

St. Letts and Brox.—The St. Louis Republican says that now the manufacturing interests there are assuming their true importance, and that city is taking her position as the great iron mart of this continent. The expression of this belief is caused by the joy arising from the discovery of extensive coal beds in the fields of the Shawnestown Company, in Gallatin county, Illinois. The coal carried from that depository has been tested, and pronounced quite equal, after coking, to the Pittsburg coal. The testing was conducted under the eyes of a large committee. It is estimated that the mines can furnish sixteen millions of tuns. There are three thousand feet of entries, sufficient for one hundred rooms and two hundred miners. A railroad has been built from the mines to the Ohio river, and is all ready for trap outfailings.

be found in the stomach or viscera of the decased; consequently the report of the Professor and Doctor above named is awaited with considerable aexisty.

During the examination on Tuesday, it was elicited from Michael Flynn, keeper of an apothecary shop, that from two to our hours previous to the death of Mrs. Stephens, Mr. Stephens purchased at said shop Mrs. Stephens, Mr. Stephens purchased at said shop two onnees of arsenie, in quantities of an ounce cach, alleging that he intended using it to kill rats with. Other witnesses, occupants of the house, were partiestarly examined as to whether the house, were partiestarly examined as to whether the house was infested with rats, but their testimony showed that they were not troubled with such vermin. One witness had heard Miss Sophia Bell cry out with alarm in consequence of meeting a rat on the stars, yet none of the witnesses thought the rats so troublesome as to need exterminating by arsenie. Neither of the Misses Bell had ever heard any complaint about rats or even mice. All the witnesses the were with Mrs. Stephen sprior to her decease testified as to her vounting and purging severely, and several physicians where examined, testified that the symptons describe would be attendant upon or follow the administration of arsenic. Dr. Barker said that where a large quantity of arsenic had been administered at hight, and might not be entirely ejected from the stomach, but any arsenical matter was retained in the system, I would remain as long the body did.

Yesterday morning Mr. Stephens was, for the first time, present at the investigation. He seemed quite unconcerted about the matter, but expressed a hope that the case might be speedily terminated, as he did not relish the slea of living in the Tombs. The prisoner being quantioned by counsel the Coroner afforded him every facility, and at his request subpenaed, several witnesses whom he desired to have examined.

COMMISSIONERS OF EMIGRATION,

The Board held their regular weekly meeting at 3; o clock on Wednesday afternoon—GULLAN C. Ventuance in the chair.

After the reading of the minutes, a communication was read from Jules Berrian, Foreign Clerk at Castle Garden, asking for an increase of salary from $300 to $600.

Garden, asking for an increase of salary from $500 to $500.

Capt. Crarter (Vice-President) said that the man was a faithful officer, and at the time of appointment a promise had been made to him by some person that as soon as he became more useful his salary would be increased. He favored the increase of salary.

Mr. Carrigan asked Mr. Crabtree if he could suggest any other place from which the required amoun could be taken?

Capt. Crabtree was not prepared to say.

Mr. Carrigan said he would have to oppose th increase, for the Board was not in a position to in crease salaries at the present time.

Mr. Jellinghaus thought it was a matter of justice to grant the increase, for the clerk had been promised such increase, as he is a very useful man inasmuch as he speaks a number of languages. He thought if the Board refused to grant the increase, he hoped they would reduce the salaries of other clerks in similar situations.

Mr. Carrieras said, after they paid their lebts, the Board had only $7,000 left to their credit; and to show that retrenchment was the order of the day, he presented a letter received from a man who was in the

He served the Board for ten years, yet, as nothing could be found for him to do, they were obliged to dis-charge him, just on the edge of Winter. The subject was referred to the Committee on Re-

THE DUDLEY ORSERVATORY .- Mrs. Blandina Dudley threatens to revoke her "offer to give $50,000 as" her "share of the requisite endowment" of the Dudley Observatory. On the 1st inst., she notified the Trustees that her nephew, Mr. Miller, was authorized to confer with them on her behalf; on the 3d that gentleman addressed them on the subject; on the 6th Mr. Olcott addressed his reply to these communications to Mrs. Dudley herself. In her rejoinder, she styles this an "gratuitous note;" requests Mr. Olcott to address Mr. Miller in future, and suggests that the property and control of the Observatory be vested in the Re-gents of the University of New-York, intimating that unless some such measures be adopted, she will with-draw her endowment. Mr. Miller has since submitted certain propositions to the Trustees. Mr. Jumes L. Hatch, whose death by yellow fever, at Charleston, S. C., has recently been announced, was a native of New Gloucester, in the State of Maine, and graduated at Bowdoin College in the class of 1854. He was known as an occasional contributor before he left Maine, and at the time of his death he was one of the editors of The Charleston Courier, and was esteemed one of the able political writers of the South. An extremist in his political speculations, he was more favorably known in a circle of attached friends at the North as a poet, humorist, and genial companion. His early death disappoints many hopes that were entertained of him as a man of letters, though, as he has been a diligent writer, it is probable that a selection of his pieces, in prose and verse, will de- ve to be published in a volume.

ARKANSAS POLITICIANS.—In Pike county, Ark., a few days since a political meeting came off, at which the candidate for the Legislature—a Dr. Lane among then—addressed the people. Upon the Doctor descending from the platform, after a brilliant speech, he was arrested for a murder committed in North Carolins two or three years ago, and put in irons, to be conveyed to the State from which he had fied. The Doctor was very rejuctant, and appealed to be conveyed, but it wouldn't be.
